The Nuba Survival

TRYING SOMETHING DIFFERENT

The Nuba Survival

This haunting sculpture is made all the more powerful by its odd location. It's backdropped by a half-collapsed barn, surrounded by the expanse of a remote field in the village of Checkendon in south Oxfordshire. There are no signs leading to the striking sculpture or plaques explaining its meaning.

The artwork, depicting two skeletons in an embrace, is titled "The Nuba Survival." It was created by local Oxfordshire sculptor John Buckley (best known for his sculpture of a shark sticking out of a roof in Headington) following a visit to the Nuba Mountains in southern Sudan.
